14th Sweeps Nip Planes From China Skies

GEN. CHENNAULT SAYS OBJECTIVE NOW ACHIEVED

Famous Unit Will Support Chinese Land Armies Pushing Back Japs

2,000 PLANES DESTROYED

2,000,000 Tons Of Shipping Damaged; Nips Moving To Manchurian Bases

KUNMING, July 11—The fourteenth airforce has achieved its objective of sweeping Japanese planes from China's skies, Lieut. Gen. Claire Chennault declared in a press conference today.

He said the 14th's next objective would be support of Chinese land armies now pushing Japanese ground forces back on several sectors.

Chennault said the Japanese are now shifting many airforce units from the home islands to Manchuria where the enemy has "numerous excellent airbases which are operational on a moment's notice."

The general declared that he believed the Japanese had drained practically all their air strength from southeast Asia, with only an occasional enemy plane making a linking hop between Indo-China and China providing a target for the fourteenth's gunners last month.

He revealed that during the Okinawa battle the 14th raided Japan's Shanghai bases so effectively that no enemy planes from that area participated in the strikes against American invasion forces.

Summing up three years of operations in China, the general said that his airmen had destroyed over 2,000 Japanese planes in the air and on the ground and they had hit over 2,000,000 tons of enemy shipping, more than the Japs have floating now.

Chennault's streamlined organization operated with the tightest possible personnel, with some units using only 50 percent of the enlisted men normally required.

CHILD, 2, LICKS PAINT, DIES OF LEAD POISONING

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 11—Westchester county medical examiner Dr. Edwin M. Huntington blamed lead poisoning today for the death of Susan Ann Amolsch, 2, who became ill after she licked fresh paint on a porch railing.

The child, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Walter Amolsch, died at New Rochelle hospital yesterday, shortly after she suffered convulsions while playing on the porch.

Famed 37th Introduced Lightning War To Land Where All Move Slowly

NORTHERN LUZON, July 11—The 37th (Ohio) division brought lightning war to a country where even the dogs prefer to hunt at a walk, and captured 200 miles of northern Luzon in 31 days.

In explaining his success, Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler said today, "we drove so fast that the Japs just didn't have any chance to get set."

Beightler said his division's drive through the Cagayan valley "again proved the Japs can't fight in open country. They ran away. The Japs on Bougainville, New Georgia, and elsewhere, were much better than these on Luzon."

"Our speed was more remarkable because we had to build 200 bridges. Practically all the bridges had been destroyed earlier by our airforce. We carried bridges with us, and the builders advanced and fought with our riflemen."

The battle is ended now except for mopping up scattered enemy forces in the Sierra Madre mountain range. Beightler's tactics shoved his spearhead in a swift dash down highway No. 5 through the heart of the fertile river valley with tanks, half-tracks, paving the way for the infantry.

He left his supply lines open to possible Japanese counterblows but offset this menace by moving so fast that the enemy just didn't have time to collect his wits.

Beightler said, "We chased them out of northern Luzon's breadbasket. Now the remainder of the Japs can starve in the hills, if they wish." Beightler called his front "200 miles long and 20 feet wide" and many times his soldiers were cramped for elbow space.

The Japs planned their major stand in Orinang pass but they were unable to bring up their full strength before the 145th infantry regiment had cracked through after three days of heavy fighting.

Beightler said Japanese tanks proved extremely cautious when it came to picking a fight.

NAVY PATERNITY TITLE CLAIMED BY FATHER OF 14

WINONA, Minn., July 11—A 50 year old sailor, Roman L. Springer of Winona, today laid claim to the paternity championship among U. S. servicemen.

Springer has 14 children.

Springer, who left a $100-a-month carpenter's job to enlist in the Navy in March, 1944, said that his wife and 11 children at home, ranging in age from 8 months to 18 years, receive a total of $280 monthly in allotments.

Springer cannot collect however, on his three oldest children, who also are in service. Marion, 22, is a WAC, Pfc James, 20, is a veteran of the European campaign now enroute to the Pacific and S-2/c Robert, 18, is in the South Pacific.

Veteran of World War I, Springer is now stationed at Camp Kearney, San Diego, Calif.

WINONA, Minn., July 11—The U. S. public health service, warning that a seasonal rise in infantile paralysis has begun, urged parents today to keep children out of crowds and take other precautions against the dread disease.

Listing 155 new cases in the country during the week ended June 30, the service said a rise in poliomyelitis could be expected from now until fall "because this is the time of year for it."

It suggested the following precautions in communities where cases of the disease are reported:

1. Keep children out of crowds.
2. Avoid swimming pools.
3. Avoid over-exertion such as exhausting bicycle rides.
4. Don't remove tonsils except in urgent cases.
5. Get rid of flies.

Dr. Charles Armstrong, director of the division of infectious diseases, said one third of the 155 new cases reported in the last week in June were in Texas. In the previous week, 116 cases were reported and 96 the week before that.

TRUMAN HOLDS MEETINGS WITH TOP ADVISERS

President Confers On Ship Bearing Him To Europe For Big 3 Confab

ARRIVAL DATE SECRET

Chief Executive Keeps In Constant Touch With Capital By Radio

ABOARD U. S. S. AUGUSTA ON THE ATLANTIC, July 11—President Truman held shipboard conferences with his top international advisers today as this powerful cruiser sped him toward Germany for the big three meeting next week.

The President, now five days out of Newport News, Va., will disembark from this ship at a northern European port and proceed by plane to Potsdam, the Berlin suburb where he will meet for the first time with his big three partners—Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Josef Stalin.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, a member of the presidential party aboard the Augusta, said there would be no advance announcement of Mr. Truman's arrival date for security reasons.

The President was keeping in constant touch with Washington by radio and holding continuous conferences aboard ship with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Admiral William D. Leahy, presidential chief of staff.

When the chief executive reaches Potsdam he will be joined by other high ranking diplomatic and military figures. They include Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador.

RICH HEIRESS FILES SUIT FOR THIRD DIVORCE

HOLLYWOOD, July 11—Barbara Hutton, poor little rich girl who married a prince, a count and a movie star in a frantic search for happiness, today admitted she had failed again. She has sued Actor Cary Grant, onetime English acrobat, for divorce.

Attorney Jerry Geisler filed the brief complaint against the handsome Grant, first commoner husband of the second richest woman in the world, charging he caused her "grievous mental distress, suffering and anguish."

Miss Hutton and Grant, who eloped to Lake Arrowhead, Calif., July 8, 1942, after he renounced all claim to her $400,000,000 Woolworth fortune, separated last Feb. 26. She moved out of the Bel-Air mansion where she maintained two complete sets of furniture to change with her mood.

GENERAL SERVES HAMBURGERS IN NEW GI CLUB

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., July 11—GI's had a two-ply treat last night—hamburgers dished out to them by a general at the opening of the new Ernie Pyle club here.

Gen. Tooley Spaatz, head of the strategic air forces in the Pacific put on an apron and handed out the eats to hundreds of soldiers, mostly air force veterans from Europe and the Far East.

The club is strictly GI—for the soldiers about whom the late correspondent wrote. It is out of bounds for officers unless they are accompanied by an enlisted man.

A telegram from Pyle's widow, Mrs. Ernestine Pyle, said "Ernie would be glad and proud that you have thought of him in such a way as to include him in your hard earned interlude of peace and happiness."

Another wire came from Gen. George C. Marshall who congratulated the club.

The club features Ernie Pyle's favorite foods—hamburgers, malted milks, hot doughnuts, orange juice and "Dagwood sandwiches," made to a GI's individual specifications.

20,000 RUBBER WORKERS IDLE AT FIRESTONE

By United Press

Occupational deferments were restored to Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. strikers today as production in the Navy-operated plants swung back toward normal, but 20,000 remained out at Firestone Tire & Rubber for the 11th day.

National Selective Service ordered deferments returned to strikers who last week were ordered reclassified for immediate induction. Several former strikers already had taken pre-induction physical examinations.

Firestone local union officers told the National War Labor Board in Washington they would refuse to order their members back to work but agreed to call a membership meeting by Friday to vote on the question.

Pickets kept even office workers away from the job and not enough maintenance men were on hand to keep up steam.

Goodyear union officials said that because 50 per cent of the company employees were working without night shift bonuses and liberalized vacation privileges—suspended during the recent 19-day strike by WLB—they will ask restoration of the privileges.

OFFICIALS URGE CONTROL PLAN FOR JAPANESE

WASHINGTON, July 11—The almost complete absence of inter-allied planning for postwar control of Japan was causing apprehension today in some official quarters.

Certain U. S. officials, recalling the arrangements under which the big allies drafted their four-power control plan for Germany, are wondering when a similar system is going to be formulated for Japan.

The answer so far has been that nothing can be done until the United States, Britain, China and—Russia enters the Pacific war—Russia form a Pacific advisory council patterned after the now-defunct European advisory commission.

So far, according to reliable sources here, no move has been made in this direction. While these quarters entertain no ideas that the Japanese war will end tomorrow, they nevertheless believe that a plan for occupation and control of Japan should be completed and ready for any eventuality.

Pessimistic Corn Crop Prediction Dashes Hope For Larger Meat Supply

WASHINGTON, July 11—Government hopes for increased meat production slumped today after the agriculture department forecast a disappointingly small 1945 crop of corn, a major livestock feed.

The department warned that production of important feed grains this year may be the smallest since the United States entered the war. It forecast a prospective corn crop of 2,685,000,000 bushels, or more than 500,000,000 bushels less than in 1944.

Faced with a tightening grain supply, food officials may have to revise their plans for stepping up hog and poultry output and cattle feeding.

The department said that feed supplies should be ample for livestock and poultry, but that consumption "cannot be as large as the last 12 months" without cutting down carryover supplies.

Despite this rather gloomy outlook, some department officials were hopeful that corn prospects would rise with better weather. They pointed out that corn crop predictions rose by more than 300,000,000 bushels from July 1 to harvest time in 1944.

Aside from the threat to the future meat program, the July crop report painted a rather optimistic picture on other agricultural production. The wheat crop promises to be the largest in history, although the amount available for feed is expected to be less than last year. The oat crop will be the largest in 25 years.

Domestic sugar production may be 25 per cent above 1944. Commercial vegetable production probably will be 20 per cent greater than last year. Above average yields were indicated for potatoes, sweet potatoes, rye and barley.

Fruit production, except citrus, may be eight per cent less than a year ago, however.

Total crop acreage is the second largest since 1932. The department called this planting a "remarkable" (Continued on Page Two)

TOKYO WRECKED BY U. S. BOMBS

First Finn Missionary To Leave Nippon Says Damage Widespread

HELSINKI, July 11—Tokyo's residential area is in ashes and American bomb damage is evident everywhere in Japan, but the average Japanese seems to be making a determined effort to ignore the whole war.

That, at least, was the picture of conditions inside Japan brought back by the leader of a Finnish missionary band just returned from Tokyo—the first Finns permitted to leave that country since the war began.

The repatriate, Artur Karen, arrived in Helsinki with six other missionaries Monday night, after an arduous journey from Japan by way of Korea, Manchuria and the Soviet Union.

Karen told the United Press that a vast area of Tokyo, comprising practically all the city's teeming residential districts, had been completely devastated by American bombs when he left.

At least 10,000 fragile wood and paper huts in the city had been reduced to ashes and only the badly-damaged modern center of Tokyo was still standing, he said.

Despite the growing war strain, however, there was no sign that the Japanese had exhausted their manpower resources, Karen reported.

"I saw quite a lot of young men working in the fields and factories, although they very probably were in the military labor service," he said.

Karen said Japan's living standards were dropping rapidly, to the point where even the normally patient Japanese were becoming worried. The daily rice ration for the average white collar worker

OPPOSANTS OF CHARTER HEARD BY SENATORS

WASHINGTON, July 11—The senate foreign relations committee today heard a succession of witnesses against the United Nations charter, one of whom was escorted from the witness chair by two policemen.

The opposition witnesses variously assailed the charter as a "Communist plot" and a plan for "empire rule" and protested the "sinister" speed with which it was being moved toward senate ratification.

The committee put a general 15-minute limit on each witness' appearance.

Mrs. Agnes Waters, Washington, D. C., describing herself as representing the national Blue Star mothers, was the first witness. She called the charter "a fraud, deceit and an international conspiracy that will knock down this nation and overthrow this government." She charged it is part of a general communist plot to control the world.

Committee Chairman Tom Connally, D. Tex., interrupted to warn her against "gratuitous insults to other governments."

"This is not a war," she shouted. "It is a world revolution for communism."

Connally restricted Mrs. Waters to 10 minutes. When she demanded further hearing he shut her off by pounding his gavel and reminding her that "I can make more noise than you can." She finally was escorted away from the witness chair by two policemen.

NIPS SAY THIRD FLEET LEAVES TOKYO BAY AREA

Army Raiders From Okinawa Take Up Assault As Carriers Rest

'U. S. CONTROLS SEA'

Forrestal Says Yank Navy Has Sunk 250 Major Jap Warships

By United Press

Tokyo said today the U. S. Third fleet had finally broken off its carrier strike against Japan with a mighty final blast that wrecked at least 173 Japanese aircraft and 32 ships.

It was the 36th straight day of the pre-invasion bombing of Japan. Even as the fleet withdrew army raiders from Okinawa took up the assault. Tokyo reported a flight of about 150 American P-51's and P-47's attacked the suicide plane bases on eastern and southern Kyushu for about two hours today.

Despite the fact that Halsey's fleet steamed almost into the mouth of Tokyo bay, it was allowed to withdraw without so much as an answering shot from the stunned enemy.

Fires leaping through Tokyo and the 80 airfields surrounding the city testified to the havoc wrought.

Speaking from Washington, Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal said last night that the Third fleet's strike had proved that the U. S. "now controls the sea right up to Japan."

To do this, he said the Navy has sunk more than 250 major Japanese warships, hundreds of merchant ships, and has destroyed thousands of planes.

From Kunning, Lieut. Gen. Claire Chennault said the 14th airforce had achieved its first objective of sweeping Japanese planes from China's skies. He said in the future the 14th's planes will swing to supporting Chinese ground forces.

The Chinese central news agency declared that Japanese forces are hurriedly abandoning their entire salient in southern Kiangsi province.

The high command's communiqué reported Chinese troops have recaptured Hain-ch'eng (Sin-chang) airfield and Nankang, both in Kiangsi province, as well as Chungtu, on the Kweilin-Liuchow highway 35 miles northeast of Liuchow in central Kwangsi.

It appeared that the Chinese are gradually gathering steam for an all-out blow against the Japanese transcontinental corridor across China.

In Borneo Australian troops secured completely Balikpapan harbor and the great Pandanari oil refineries. Now they must sweep the waiting Japs from 200-foot high Mount Batochampan.

Hardpressed Tokyo added another drab touch to her dismal picture with a broadcast saying that blind Japanese war veterans have been organized into a special labor battalion for service in case of an allied invasion.

sador to Moscow who has done some of the preparatory work for the coming big three meeting, and consultant experts from the State, War and Navy departments, including the joint chiefs of staff.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Gen. H. H. Arnold and Leahy make up the joint chiefs of staff.

Questions of great import face the impending big three conference. Among them are problems of German occupation and control and possibly of boundary changes to be included in the final European peace treaty.

(Dispatches from London said diplomatic sources there listed eight territorial claims which the big three may consider. These included Poland's claim on Germany to compensate for territory ceded to Russia, Yugoslavia's demand for Trieste, and the French demand for the Saar and part of the Rhineland.)

Mr. Truman's party sailed from Newport News on July 7 for a round trip that will total more than 10,000 miles. He will be the first American president to visit western Europe since Woodrow Wilson went to Paris for the 1919 peace conference.

The trip was memorable for Mr. Truman for another reason. It marked his first Atlantic crossing since he returned from France after the first World War in which he served as an artillery officer.

The President's party also included his military and naval aides, Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Capt. James K. Vardaman, Jr.; Benjamin J. Cohen, assistant to Byrnes; Charles E. Bohlen, state department Russian expert and interpreter at other big three meetings; H. Freeman Matthews, director of the state department's office of European affairs; and Capt. Alphonse McMahon, a Navy physician.

For the most part Mr. Truman has enjoyed excellent weather on the trip thus far and his curiosity has taken him to virtually every part of this cruiser. The Augusta is skippered by Capt. James H. Foskett of Stratford, Pa. The cruiser Philadelphia, the other vessel in the special two-ship task force, is commanded by Capt. Robert L. Boller of Bremer-ton, Wash. Rear Admiral Allan R. McCann commands the task force.

Aside from his conferences, Mr. Truman's schedule aboard ship is essentially the same as his white house routine—up a little after six each morning, a nap after lunch and to bed before midnight. On Sunday he attended church services with the crew.

He occupies the flag admiral's suite on the command deck. When he is not at work there, he spends much time on deck in shirt sleeves and tweed cap.

Mr. Truman spent part of the day Monday touring the ship, including the hot engine and boiler rooms and the sick bay where he chatted with ailing seamen.

The President had lunch Monday with the officers in the ward-room mess and yesterday with the warrant officers. He will eat with the chief petty officers and enlisted men before the trip is over.

HIGHLAND COMMANDO, FRESH FROM WAR IN BALKANS, SPURS U. S. PRODUCTION

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — A blond and dashing six-foot Scot who wears the Highland plaid kilt and ostrich plume bonnet is bringing the romance of military glory to the American production line.

Lt. Col. Ian F. MacAlpine, one of the most famous British Commando leaders, comes fresh from guerrilla warfare with Marshal Tito's forces to stir the imagination and to spur the output of the average civilian worker. His tour down the eastern seaboard, through the middle west, and to the Pacific coast is being sponsored jointly by the war department and the British Information Service.

This appealing, blue-eyed Scot tells us first-hand what guns and ammunition mean to the man at the fighting front, and he will say "thank you" in behalf of the Allied comrades-in-arms for the supplies and equipment which already have been provided. This veteran of two wars, still in his early 40's, who personally has engaged in the most hazardous military operation, brings both a challenge and an expression of appreciation.

His Message to Workers

Discussing his message to American war workers, Colonel MacAlpine explained, "I remind them that, while the soldier enjoys the glamor of the press, he is ever mindful of the great contribution being made at the war plants in uneventful surroundings and often under difficult circumstances."

Colonel MacAlpine, whose own wife served on the production line in England, referred particularly to women workers: "They have the dual responsibility of home-making and the added duties and anxieties occasioned by the absence of their fighting men."

Turning a bolt or shaping a bit of metal may seem "dull" at times, Colonel MacAlpine points out, but it's all a "very essential" part of the great pattern of modern war. The colonel fortunately speaks the language of the average American, and there is not much trace of a British accent nor an edge of British reserve.

As would be expected, Colonel MacAlpine enjoyed quite a warm welcome in America. Having commanded an attachment of 300 American troops in the Tunisian campaign, Colonel MacAlpine often is welcomed by members of their friends and families.

It's the folk of Scotch descent, however, who seem to get the biggest kick out of the appearance of the colonel, but everybody in general around the war plants and the Army depots seems rather curious about this "man in the skirt" and he commands attention from the outset.

Aside from his production pep talk, Colonel MacAlpine has very many interesting experiences to recount. Last July, after the Normandy landings, he was flown out to assume command of the Commandos in the Balkan theater, and he thus got an intimate knowledge of the personalities and their surroundings in the current international spotlight.

Of course, Colonel MacAlpine, under the Army code, cannot speak out on the hottest political questions, but he does go so far as to say of Marshal Tito that "he is possibly the only chap who has the necessary qualities to lead Yugoslavia to the goal of amalgamation."

MacAlpine described Tito as a "quiet, rather simple type of man, giving the impression of great determination and purpose." Tito's "artisans have qualities of real courage and endurance, according to the colonel.

"There is no question but that the jealousies and rivalries they always have had in that section still exist, but I do think that Marshal Tito offers the only possibility of succeeding in the reconciliation of the political differences of opinion and passion," Colonel MacAlpine added. He did not mention young King Peter's struggle to return to Yugoslavia and regain his throne.

Harassing the Enemy

Recalling his recent military activities in the Balkans, Colonel MacAlpine said his initial task was to harass the Germans who were living in the Dalmatian villages. Then, MacAlpine's Commandos cleared out the various islands and finally landed on the mainland at Dubrovnik to catch the Germans in the squeeze made possible on the east by the advancing Russians.

"Of course, despite our detailed plans, it was not without cost," Colonel MacAlpine explained. "Our theater of war did not have a high priority, and our ground troops, therefore, lacked good supporting weapons."

At the same time, he paid great tribute to the civilian inhabitants of Yugoslavia who helped the Commandos at the risk of their lives. In fact, people frequently were executed by the enemy for aiding the guerrillas.

Colonel MacAlpine recalled one particularly harrowing experience in which his outfit was caught behind the German lines.

"We were taken in by a poor peasant woman," he recalled. "She turned over her house to be used as a regular aid post, as there were some stretcher cases. We ran out of shell dressing."

"She gave us what linens she had. She also boiled water for the dressing of the wounds, and she milked her goats to serve our men, knowing all the time she probably would be executed by the Germans."

"Then, she guided us through the German position at night with the sure and sound knowledge she had of the countryside. We were thus able to get back to our landing craft and evacuate our force. Later, we heard that the woman and her daughters were executed."

Colonel MacAlpine contracted malaria and that developed complications of jaundice. That is why he was given leave from the war theater, and although he still is not well he is doing his bit in traveling around this country under crowded, unpleasant conditions, to boost production and help the boys he left behind.

Colonel MacAlpine was born in Invernesshire, Scotland, on Jan. 17, 1899. He received his army training in the Channel Island Militia, transferring in 1917 to a regular commission in the Black Watch, Royal Highland Regiment. He served with the regiment in France during World War I, until he was severely wounded in April, 1918, and taken prisoner.

Invalided out of the army, he sought the open country of Australia and engaged in sheep and cattle farming. Later, he spent a year on reconnaissance in Burma and Siam for purposes of extracting teak from the jungle.

Returning to the United Kingdom, he served on the London Passenger Transport Board, a semi-government agency, until the outbreak of the present war, when he returned to the army and joined the Commandos. He was among the hardy group of pioneers, developing daring tactics which proved so effective, but Colonel MacAlpine sadly nods his head, observing, "I am one of the few left."

CITY AIRSTRIP IS SUGGESTED

Middletown in 45 minutes and then spent 15 more minutes trying to locate a suitable landing place. They finally brought their plane down on number 5 fairway.

Mr. Carson, in speaking to the members, told them that post war traveling will be more and more by plane, and that the town or small city without a landing strip will be out of the picture. He told the group that it would not be necessary for the city to have a regular air field but at least two landing strips should be built that would enable planes to take off from either direction according to the wind. His company, he said already has thousands of unfilled orders from individuals for private planes all of which will be filled at the conclusion of the war.

Salesmen, he said will be making their trips by plane as well as executives of companies and an airstrip will be a necessity.

Boyd Stout, retiring president, gave a report of his work for the year and reports were also given by Elliott White and Frank Wantz, retiring treasurer and secretary respectively.

New officers installed at this meeting were Frank Wantz, president; John Moore, secretary; Dr. W. J. Herbert, treasurer; Hal Dean, first vice president, and George Mallet, second vice president.

Mr. Goodman making an official visit to the club, gave a short talk about leadership training and also talked on aviation.

Announcement was made at this time of the state board meeting which will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Desher Wallik hotel, Columbus, and which practically all officers of the club expect to attend. Boyd Stout, the retiring president, will attend as the newly elected state vice president of the Southeastern district.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by a committee of which Hal Dean was chairman.

Mrs. Lanman, an attractive brunette, told police the nursery was unattended when she grabbed up the Creviston baby.

"I didn't intend to take the baby," she said, "but when I saw it in the crib, 'just took it.' She left the hospital unnoticed and took a taxicab, she told police. She decided to change the baby's diaper, she said. She stopped the cab and went into a house."

"I didn't know whose house it was," she said. "I asked if I could change the baby's diaper. They gave me one to put on her."

A suspicious member of the family reported the incident to police and the diaper Mrs. Lanman left behind was traced to the city hospital.

Mrs. Lanman was near hysteria when she finished her story. She was taken to city hospital for observation before her arraignment.

MILITARY RITES PLANNED FOR GERMAN POW'S

FT. DOUGLAS, Utah, July 11—An escort of German prisoners of war will attend a graveside military funeral tomorrow for eight of their comrades killed when a berserk tower guard machine-gunned the tents in which they were sleeping.

Army officials said a delegation of 15 prisoners from the branch POW camp at Salina, Utah, would be allowed to attend the funeral. A chorus of 50 prisoners from the Ogden base camp will furnish music. Services will be conducted by a U. S. Army chaplain.

A German flag will be permitted, Fort Douglas officers said, if the prisoners can find one.

accomplishment" in view of the season's adverse weather.

Some farming areas have not recovered so well, however. Weather in the last month brought little relief from excessive rains in Missouri, northern Arkansas, eastern Kansas and Oklahoma, southern Illinois and Indiana and western Kentucky and Tennessee.

"Conditions in some localities have become so discouraging that many farmers have given up hope of making any kind of a crop," the department said.

The drought in the Southwest still persists with damaging effects, the department said. In New Mexico and west Texas, range feed for livestock is "exceptionally short" and crops have been "damaged beyond recovery."

TWO MORE DIVORCE SUITS FILED IN LOCAL COURT

Two more marriages have gone on the rocks according to records filed in the clerk of courts office Tuesday afternoon. Both were 1938 elopements to Kentucky where the marriages were performed. In both cases the husbands have returned to the homes of their parents.

Marguerite L. Anderson filed suit for divorce from Robert L. Anderson charging gross neglect of duty. She states that her husband left their home in April, 1945, and has not returned and is living at the home of his parents. The couple was married May 29, 1938, and have no children. Marguerite Anderson states that she is now pregnant and she prays the court to grant her a divorce, the care and custody of their child when it is born.

Imogene Mettler, New Holland, asks for divorce from Francis Mettler whom she says is now residing at the home of his parents, 361 East Water street, Chillicothe, Ky. They were married in Greenup, Ky., December 24, 1938, and are the parents of two sons, Charles Eugene 6, and Russell George, 3. Gross neglect of duty was charged by Mrs. Mettler as the cause of the action. She states in her petition that her husband has humiliated her on numerous occasions by his associations in public with other women and that after he entered the armed services in August 1944 she was obliged to pay $200 in debts that he had contracted previously.

She asks for divorce, $50 per month alimony, $50 per month for the maintenance of their two children and for the care and custody of the children.

GERMAN U-BOAT NOW INTERNED IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, July 11—The Argentine naval ministry announced today that the German U-boat which surrendered in Buenos Aires harbor yesterday was not responsible for the recent sinking of the Brazilian cruiser Bahia, which went down with a loss of almost 300 officers and men.

The ministry also denied that the U-boat had been carrying any Nazi political or military leaders into exile. The only persons aboard the vessel when it entered the Mar Del Plata naval base yesterday morning were Capt. Otto Wermout and the 54 members of his crew.

No one was put ashore on Argentine soil before the submarine surrendered, the ministry added.

The ministry of the interior, meanwhile, said the submarine was believed to have left the North sea seven weeks ago—apparently after the German capitulation—and that an effort was being made to trace its operations since that time.

British and American naval representatives have been authorized to visit the base where the U-boat is interned.

CHILLICOTHE WOMAN HELD

Chillicothe police Tuesday night returned to that city Mrs. Lucille McGarvey, Chillicothe, who was taken off a bus here by Circleville police. She was arrested on a warrant charging she obtained money under false pretense.

8 SHIPS BRING 35,000 TROOPS TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 11—More than 35,000 jubilant veterans of the European war, the largest group of returning soldiers to arrive home in one day since V-E day, were pouring into New York harbor today.

Eight transports, paced by the giant Queen Mary and West Point, steamed past the grey-green statue of liberty under a cloudless sky, their rails lined with 28,266 cheering Americans and some 7,000 Canadian soldiers.

The Navy transport West Point, formerly the S. S. America, brought 7,607 troops, including the 345th and 347th regiments of the 87th division and their commanding general, Maj. Gen. Frank L. Culin, Jr.

Other 87th division units included: headquarters special troops, band, 87th counter-intelligence corps detachment, the 334th, growth of American airpower in China, Chennault said, "supply problems remain practically as before, though our airbase facilities are ample for a greatly augmented effort."

The general said he believed it was always possible that the Japs might surrender, but there was a much greater chance that they will continue to fight.

He believes that Hengyang is the key to South China and that the Japanese probably will attempt to hold all major ports. Chennault said if the Japanese are driven from South China they might fall back to the Yangtze river, then to the Yellow river—Lunghai railway position, then to the Tientsin-Peking-Kalgan line, and finally to the great wall with an advantage of a vastly shorter defensive line.

He said the Japanese apparently have sufficient rolling stock to work the railways for their military needs, but that continued attacks within a few months would leave the enemy especially short of locomotives.

336th, and 912th field artillery battalions.

They had as fellow passengers 33 Japanese diplomats, for whom the New York skyline promised no welcome but internment.

The Queen Mary had a passenger list of more than 15,000, including the 7,000 Canadians.

Among her 8,642 American troops were the 103rd general hospital and advance units of 10 other general hospitals. Eighth air force units aboard the British liner included bomb groups 466, 467, 440, 458, 446 and 491, air service groups 374, 375, 376, 377, 378 and 379.

TRUMAN HOLDS MEETINGS WITH TOP ADVISERS

President Confers On Ship Bearing Him To Europe For Big 3 Confab

(Continued from Page One) sador to Moscow who has done some of the preparatory work for the coming big three meeting, and consultant experts from the State, War and Navy departments, including the joint chiefs of staff.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Gen. H. H. Arnold and Leahy make up the joint chiefs of staff.

Questions of great importance face the impending big three conference. Among them are problems of German occupation and control and possibly of boundary changes to be included in the final European peace treaty.

(Dispatches from London said diplomatic sources there listed eight territorial claims which the big three may consider. These included Poland's claim on Germany to compensate for territory ceded to Russia, Yugoslavia's demand for Trieste, and the French demand for the Saar and part of the Rhineland.)

Mr. Truman's party sailed from Newport News on July 7 for a round trip that will total more than 10,000 miles. He will be the first American president to visit western Europe since Woodrow Wilson went to Paris for the 1919 peace conference.

The trip was memorable for Mr. Truman for another reason. It marked his first Atlantic crossing since he returned from France after the first World War in which he served as an artillery officer.

The President's party also included his military and naval aides, Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Capt. James K. Vardaman, Jr.; Benjamin V. Cohen, assistant to Byrnes; Charles E. Bohlen, state department Russian expert and interpreter at other big three meetings; H. Freeman Matthews, director of the state department's office of European affairs; and Capt. Alphonse McMahon, a Navy physician.

For the most part Mr. Truman has enjoyed excellent weather on the trip thus far and his curiosity has taken him to virtually every part of this cruiser. The Augusta is skippered by Capt. James H. Fokett of Stratford, Pa. The cruiser Philadelphia, the other vessel in the special two-ship task force, is commanded by Capt. Robert L. Boller of Bremerton, Wash. Rear Admiral Allan R. McCann commands the task force.

Aside from his conferences, Mr. Truman's schedule aboard ship is essentially the same as his white house routine—up a little after six each morning, a nap after lunch and to bed before midnight. On Sunday he attended church services with the crew.

He occupies the flag admiral's suite on the command deck. When he is not at work there, he spends much time on deck in shirt sleeves and tweed cap.

Mr. Truman spent part of the day Monday touring the ship, including the hot engine and boiler rooms and the sick bay where he chatted with ailing seamen.

The President had lunch Monday with the officers in the wardroom mess and yesterday with the warrant officers. He will eat with the chief petty officers and enlisted men before the trip is over.

HIGHLAND COMMANDO, FRESH FROM WAR IN BALKANS, SPURS U. S. PRODUCTION

By MALVINA STEPHENSON Central Press Correspondent WASHINGTON—A blond and dashing six-foot Scot who wears the Highland plaid kilt and ostrich plume bonnet is bringing the romance of military glory to the American production line.

Lt. Col. Ian F. MacAlpine, one of the most famous British Commando leaders, comes fresh from guerrilla warfare with Marshal Tito's forces to stir the imagination and to spur the output of the average civilian worker. His tour down the eastern seaboard, through the middle west, and to the Pacific coast is being sponsored jointly by the war department and the British Information Services.

This appealing, blue-eyed Scot tells us first-hand what guns and ammunition mean to the man at the fighting front, and he will say "thank you" in behalf of the Allied comrades-in-arms for the supplies and equipment which already have been provided. This veteran of two wars, still in his early 40's, who personally has engaged in the most hazardous military operation, brings both a challenge and an expression of appreciation.

His Message to Workers

Discussing his message to American war workers, Colonel MacAlpine explained, "I remind them that, while the soldier enjoys the glamor of the press, he is ever mindful of the great contribution being made at the war plants in uneventful surroundings and often under difficult circumstances."

Colonel MacAlpine, whose own wife served on the production line in England, referred particularly to women workers: "They have the dual responsibility of home-making and the added duties and anxieties occasioned by the absence of their fighting men."

Turning a bolt or shaping a bit of metal may seem "dull" at times, Colonel MacAlpine points out, but it's all a "very essential" part of the great pattern of modern war. The colonel fortunately speaks the language of the average American, and there is not much trace of a British accent nor an edge of British reserve.

As would be expected, Colonel MacAlpine enjoyed quite a warm welcome in America. Having commanded an attachment of 300 American troops in the Tunisian campaign, Colonel MacAlpine often is welcomed by members of their friends and families.

It's the folk of Scotch descent, however, who seem to get the biggest kick out of the appearance of the colonel, but everybody in general around the war plants and the Army depots seems rather curious about this "man in the skirt" and he commands attention from the outset.

Aside from his production pep talk, Colonel MacAlpine has very many interesting experiences to recount. Last July, after the Normandy landings, he was flown out to assume command of the Commandos in the Balkan theater, and he thus got an intimate knowledge of the personalities and their surroundings in the current international spotlight.

Of course, Colonel MacAlpine, under the Army code, cannot speak out on the hottest political questions, but he does go so far as to say of Marshal Tito that "he is possibly the only chap who has the necessary qualities to lead Yugoslavia to the goal of amalgamation."

MacAlpine described Tito as a "quiet, rather simple type of man, giving the impression of great determination and purpose." Tito's "artisans have qualities of real courage and endurance, according to the colonel.

"There is no question but that the jealousies and rivalries they always have had in that section still exist, but I do think that Marshal Tito offers the only possibility of succeeding in the reconciliation of the political differences of opinion and passion." Colonel MacAlpine added. He did not mention young King Peter's struggle to return to Yugoslavia and regain his throne.

Harassing the Enemy

Recalling his recent military activities in the Balkans, Colonel MacAlpine said his initial task was to harass the Germans who were living in the Dalmatian villages. Then, MacAlpine's Commandos cleared out the various islands and finally landed on the mainland at Dubrovnik to catch the Germans in the squeeze made possible on the east by the advancing Russians.

"Of course, despite our detailed plans, it was not without cost," Colonel MacAlpine explained. "Our theater of war did not have a high priority, and our ground troops, therefore, lacked good supporting weapons."

MARSHAL TITO (arrow) and his staff

Colonel MacAlpine recalled one particularly harrowing experience in which his outfit was caught behind the German lines.

"We were taken in by a poor peasant woman," he recalled. "She turned over her house to be used as a regular aid post, as there were some stretcher cases. We ran out of shell dressing."

"She gave us what linens she had. She also boiled water for the dressing of the wounds, and she milked her goats to serve our men, knowing all the time she probably would be executed by the Germans."

"Then, she guided us through the German position at night with the sure and sound knowledge she had of the countryside. We were thus able to get back to our landing craft and evacuate our force. Later, we heard that the woman and her daughters were executed."

Colonel MacAlpine contracted malaria and that developed complications of jaundice. That is why he was given leave from the war theater, and although he still is not well he is doing his bit in traveling around this country under crowded, unpleasant conditions, to boost production and help the boys he left behind.

Colonel MacAlpine was born in Invernesshire, Scotland, on Jan. 17, 1899. He received his army training in the Channel Island Militia, transferring in 1917 to a regular commission in the Black Watch, Royal Highland Regiment. He served with the regiment in France during World War I, until he was severely wounded in April, 1918, and taken prisoner.

Invalided out of the army, he sought the open country of Australia and engaged in sheep and cattle farming. Later, he spent a year on reconnaissance in Burma and Siam for purposes of extracting tea from the jungle.

Returning to the United Kingdom, he served on the London Passenger Transport Board, a semi-government agency, until the outbreak of the present war, when he returned to the army and joined the Commandos. He was among the hardy group of pioneers, developing daring tactics which proved so effective, but Colonel MacAlpine sadly nods his head, asserting, "I am one of the few left."

"Meat doesn't exist," Karen added, "and there is milk only in small quantities for babies under 10 months."

The missionary said the food situation varied in different parts of Japan because of the ban on shipments of food between provinces and the lack of a country-wide supply organization.

Prices on rationed foodstuffs were still low when the missionaries left but Karen said a widespread and flourishing black market was promoting inflation.

Japan's transportation system also was in hand straits, with most civilian railway travel abolished completely and express trains running only between Tokyo and Kyoh-sho.

Karen said it was impossible to judge the average Japanese attitude toward the bloody war raging on the borders of the home islands.

Middletown in 45 minutes and then spent 15 more minutes trying to locate a suitable landing place. They finally brought their plane down on number 5 fairway.

Mr. Carson, in speaking to the members, told them that post war traveling will be more and more by plane, and that the town or small city without a landing strip will be out of the picture. He told the group that it would not be necessary for the city to have a regular air field but at least two landing strips should be built that would enable planes to take off from either direction according to the wind. His company, he said already has thousands of unfilled orders from individuals for private planes all of which will be filled at the conclusion of the war. Salesmen, he said will be making their trips by plane as well as executives of companies and an airstrip will be a necessity.

Boyd Stout, retiring president, gave a report of his work for the year and reports were also given by Elliott White and Frank Wantz, retiring treasurer and secretary respectively.

GERMAN U-BOAT NOW INTERNED IN ARGENTINA

Poor Digestion? YES NO
Headachy? YES NO
Sour or Upset? YES NO
Tired-Listless? YES NO

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25c.

PENALTY OF SAVAGERY

THERE were some critics, both British and American, who protested against the hanging of three German civilians for killing an American airman who parachuted from a burning bomber last August. But there are international rules of warfare governing such cases. These forbid the use of violence against prisoners; and when the rules are not obeyed it is bad in the long run for both sides.

War at best is a tough business, which must be confined as far as possible to the operations of men definitely employed for military purposes. They are expected to wear uniforms in order to prevent confusion.

Espionage is practised in all armies, and is generally considered legitimate by the practitioners. It is also deemed legitimate to shoot a proved spy when he is caught. The application of such punishment, however, by the rules of war, is reserved for military forces. If it were not so, warfare would be far worse than it is.

OH, PSHAW!

IT is interesting to find the long subdued George Bernard Shaw bobbing up again after a period of silence so long and deep that he was almost forgotten in the press of more important things. It would be more interesting, however, if the reason for his unwonted silence were explained. Presumably the British wartime censorship was responsible.

He seems to arouse neither laughs nor sneers, among Britons and Americans in general, when he proclaims that "practical British Communism" has saved Britain in the western war, while "Russian Communism" has saved Britain in the east. The most interesting and curious thing about his verbal resurrection is his jibe at the present British government, which he lambastes for its "pious protest against violence, after spending $54,000,000 a day for five years in the most frightful form of violence in the history of mankind."

Level-headed people, whether British or American, naturally wonder what would have happened to the world if the originators and promoters of the great war had not been met with superior force. Yet they are glad to hear the old "Gadfly of Athens" take to his bitter speech again. It makes the world seem more normal. And he's been a useful debunker of many things in his day.

If all the advertisements about the effectiveness of post-war gasoline are correct, the old bus, when given a shot, will give a yip and jump over the post-office.

Things don't change very much. A few years ago people were criticising the WPA. Now it is the OPA.

Wife of Jimmie Byrnes
Is Tremendous Helper
New Secretary of State
Leans Heavily on Mate

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The wife of the new secretary of state is, so knowing politicians say, the perfect wife for the man in public life. Maud Byrnes, wife of James F. Byrnes, has made her husband's career her complete life work ever since she married the lively Irishman down in North Carolina. She is a pretty, gentle woman with a soft voice. She is neither argumentative nor restless. She has never dragged the poor man out to parties when he came home tired from his office. She is a charming home-maker and a wise listening post when her husband wants to explode about some of the difficulties he has had to overcome.

Whenever Byrnes ran for office, and he ran right often and right far, she drove him by day or night through his district, stopping at the right spots so that Jimmie could address an auditorium of possible constituents.

Meanwhile, she was always good-tempered, encouraging and gave sound advice in the slightly baffled-by-it-all tone of voice which southern women affect so well.

"I was just thinking, Jimmie," she would say after Jimmie had been storming a bit at the opposition, "I was just thinking, that maybe you might have got the wrong impression—well, just a little—about what those people really meant."

"If ever a man was truly helped by his wife," said Speaker Sam Rayburn, "it is Jimmie Byrnes. Why, Maud knows that fellow inside and out. She has always done the thing that would be best for him. And she's done it gaily and unselfishly. I tell you, Maud's a fine girl."

The new secretary of state has a talent for winning and holding

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 11—Henry Morgenthau's side of his resignation story told now he had become irritated by constantly recurring rumors of his impending departure, that these were interfering with his work, so he went to President Truman and said he would not stay unless he received backing.

Mr. Truman offered to deny the rumors. Mr. Morgenthau thought the denial should promise his continuance in office "at least until Japan is defeated." The President seemed to feel this would commit him too far. Mr. Morgenthau wrote out his resignation, although he had not planned doing so.

The other side of the story implies that many of Mr. Truman's highest placed associates were worried about Mr. Morgenthau possibly succeeding to the presidency, a position for which he would be the first to concede his unfitness by temperament, experience or ability.

Little note was taken of the situation, but if anything had happened to Mr. Truman during the few days interval after he accepted the resignation of State Secretary Stettinius, and before he appointed James F. Byrnes to that first cabinet post, Morgenthau would have been president, as next in line.

Now Messrs. Truman and Byrnes are going to Berlin for the big three conference (but not together, as a precaution.) Mr. Morgenthau was still clearly next in line—until his squeezed resignation placed him in a position where unquestionably he would have to decline the office.

This situation may not have worried Mr. Truman, but associates working in his interests no doubt were the authors of what Mr. Morgenthau thought to be "irritating rumors."

Around the top of this administration Mr. Morgenthau had been regarded as a man with good New York banking connections, but expandable. Now he will continue at the treasury until probably August 15 when his successor, Fred M. Vinson, will take over.

As a matter of full truth, Mr. Morgenthau was slated to go any way when his Bretton Woods plan cleared congress and the War Loan drive wound up. There was no logical excuse for him to continue to delay fulfillment of the custom, permitting a president to choose his own cabinet without the slightest embarrassment.

Indeed, this column was able to lead off, in newspapers last May 24:

"A complete cabinet shakedown is coming. State and treasury will surely be involved in addition to agriculture, justice and labor."

Both angles of that forecast now have been fulfilled.

I am therefore inclined to believe both sides of the story, Mr. Morgenthau's and the untold one that Mr. Truman's friends, knowing well the personalities involved, nettled Mr. Morgenthau into making the break.

The equally important resignation of Supreme Court Justice Roberts lacked such thorough explanation. He dodged inquiries. Yet his associates knew he was so completely out of tune with the Black crowd on the court and the majority trend of that tribunal, they were not surprised when he grasped the excuse of his crossing of the retirement age, to bow himself out diplomatically.

Justice Roberts was such a pleasant, friendly man he was accustomed to call his

Obesity Really a Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

OBESITY or overweight is a disease, and in spite of its frequency, it is a disorder that does not as a rule receive the full attention it deserves. Overweight persons have a higher death rate than do normal people. The frequency of diabetes, high blood pressure, disorders of the heart and kidneys as well as orthopedic disorders, that is, conditions affecting the bones, joints and muscles, is much greater among the overweight than among those whose weight is normal or even below normal.

No one really wants to be fat, and yet once a person becomes fat, he only too often does nothing to remedy the condition, and there is no excuse for this, since obesity not only can be prevented but cured.

Output of Energy
If a person's output of energy is more than his intake of energy in the form of food a loss in weight will occur. If, on the other hand, the intake in energy in the form of food is greater than the output the excess will be stored in fat. According to Doctor Yoshio Taira of Milwaukee, this rule applies even to those persons who may be overweight in part because of some disturbance of the glands, such as the thyroid. It is true that lack of secretion from the thyroid and pituitary glands may be a factor in producing overweight.

Doctor Taira does not believe that heredity has anything to do with obesity although many other physicians think that it does. In other words, to be fat does not run in the family. Body build is hereditary. That is, the type of body makeup is often the same for members of a family, but it is the mode of living and the eating habits that have great effect in producing overweight, not heredity. When the members of a family get into the habit of overeating, everyone in the family becomes accustomed to it and this in turn will lead to overweight.

Middle-age Group
Habit also explains the fact that persons in the middle-age group are overweight more frequently than younger persons for the middle-aged have carried over the habits of overeating which they formed during their early years. In addition, during the middle-aged period, physical activities become less strenuous and this also contributes to weight gain.

The treatment of overweight consists in doing two things, to cut down the intake of energy and to increase the output. However, this is not always easy to do. Exercises may be employed but care must be taken that they are not so strenuous as to overtax the obese person's already overloaded heart.

The most important part of the management of obesity is a proper diet and the diet must be strictly adhered to. Even with the diet, for a period of two or three weeks there may be no loss in weight or in some instances a gain in weight, but when this initial period has passed, a marked drop in weight will begin to occur and the obesity will then rapidly disappear. The diet and other treatment is always best carried out under the directions of the physician.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

TERRY'S SLEEP was troubled. When she woke the next morning she smiled ruefully at the long, wild dreams she had rambled through. The day was sunny, and the brackish smell of tucura was gone. She slid her feet into mules, wrapped her robe about her, and started for the shower.

Her head was better, too, she noted with satisfaction. The dull ache was almost gone and she had no feeling of dizziness.

"It's a good thing," she told her mirrored image sternly. "If you must go around coveting engaged men in your dreams, whenever you get tapped on the head."

She knew very well what had let in those dreams. Her last waking thought the night before. Her hope that Brooks and Corinne had quarreled. This morning that hope seemed childish. But she still was anxious over Brooks' political destiny.

Angela was plumping her pillows when she came back from the shower. As she tucked in the robe around her and laid her breakfast tray before her, Terry caught sight of a folded note with her name on it in Raff's handwriting.

She tore it open quickly. Raff had scrawled across the top, "Latest bulletin from the front." Bless his heart, he knew a curious woman when he met one. His note answered her questions. It said, "Calm follows storm. Ship of state sails on." It could mean only one thing. Corinne had been angry, but Brooks' decision to carry on the housing project would not affect his nomination!

The house seemed deserted when Terry went downstairs later. But as she passed the closed door of Brooks' study, she heard the murmur of voices. Brooks' serious rumble mingling with the velvet tones of Corinne. It sounded as if she were helping him again with his speeches. The girl was magnificent. Terry adored her.

On the sun-gilded terrace, Raff and Jime were in deep discussion with a stranger. Jime broke off to draw Terry into the circle.

"Senorita Arnold," she introduced her, "the decorator." "Assistant decorator," Terry murmured.

Jime smilingly ignored the correction. "This is Senorita McConnell, our building foreman."

Terry felt a thrill of excitement

"You mean you're here to start the houses?"

"My men are at work," he assured her.

"It won't take long now, will it?" Terry asked. "With the foundations already in?"

Raff laughed. "There you go again," he chided, "with your Norte American speed—speed!"

Terry's brows arched at him. "You haven't done so badly with those blueprints of yours," she retorted.

McConnell laughed. "That he hasn't!" he cried. "The big boss in town can't get over the way he's whipped him out! He's shaming the other architects with the pesky things."

Jime beamed proudly upon Raff. "I'll make something of the scamp yet," she boasted.

Raff's laughing eyes passed Jime to rest fleetingly on Terry. They said plainly, "It's your handiwork. Are you pleased?"

Terry's happy laugh answered him.

The discussion finished, McConnell and Raff started off. But Jime and Terry insisted on going along. They took the station wagon and drove through the waving sea of pampas to the peon settlement where the first houses were going up.

Terry was amused at the assemblage of peon women and children around the houses.

"It looks like they're setting up housekeeping among the uprights," Jime said.

Most of them had brought along food for their lunches and were spending the day watching these wondrous homes of theirs going up. They were too engrossed for more than a quick greeting to Jime and Terry. Each two by four that went into place fascinated them. And on one house where the roof was being laid several peon women were gazing with open-mouthed awe.

Children scampered about, collecting blocks and shavings, teetering precariously along horizontal planks, letting out yelps of exuberance like small balloons too full of the air of excitement.

Terry and Jime were almost as thrilled. These were their dreams come true. And Raff strutted about with McConnell like an emperor viewing his kingdom.

There were scores of details to check on. The hours flew by. Only when McConnell declared he'd have to stop for a bite of lunch did they realize it was long past noon.

Brooks, Corinne and Roxie were finishing their luncheon when they arrived.

Roxie regarded them with petulant eyes. "I can't go on this way," she whispered.

Raff winked at Terry. "She saw an Ida Lupino film last night." "I've become just a slave to that darned puzzle," Roxie mourned. "I've been working on it—" She clapped her hand over her mouth and regarded them with horror-stricken gaze. "Did you hear that?" she shrieked. "I've been working! Well, that settles it. Much as I adore you, I've got to get out of here. You've all become drones and I don't intend to get caught in the wave of insanity. Maria, pack my things!"

Maria was plugging in the phone at the wall.

"And that's another thing!" cried Roxie. "I'm going some place where I don't have to hear political phone calls every meal!"

"It is for you, Senora."

They all laughed at Roxie's stunned face.

Corinne murmured, "I think it's father. He promised me I could go along on Brooks' last campaign tour that will lead into Buenos Aires and the convention—if you will chaperone the party."

Roxie's sudden joy was beautiful to see. She sparkled like a new lit Christmas tree. "Travel—people—excitement again! I'm resurrected!" Her ringed hand trembled as she lifted the receiver. Then a crafty gleam slid into her glowing eyes.

"Artigas?" she murmured into the phone. "Oh, I'm all right. Bored? But how ridiculous! You mean you want me to go on some wild tour of yours, with you and Corinne and Brooks and a lot of political riff-raff?" She yawned. "Well, really, Artigas, it might be amusing. But I'm so fascinated with this puzzle. I don't see how under heaven I can leave until I finish it. Now don't get excited. Artigas. It's just that I don't like to be disturbed when I'm busy . . ."

As the argument went on, Terry choked on her quiet mirth. "Hell hath no fury," she whispered.

LEADER OF IT LOSES

IF ONE pair has the queen and jack of a suit in opposite hands, with one of them twice guarded and the other at least singly guarded, the leader of that suit usually gives up a trick. The side holding that combination is certain to have one of those cards established if the opponents lead the suit. And the side holding it is virtually sure to give up all chance for a trick if it makes the first lead of the suit.

Identical bidding of that deal was done at two tables of a duplicate, and the defense began the same at both tables, with West taking his diamond K and A. Then came the single difference which decided whether the contract was made or beaten. At one table, West shifted, on the third trick, to the spade 3. The 5 was played by dummy, the Q by East and the A by South. Immediately then South led the spade 2, finessed the 10 and dropped the J with the K. Thereafter South could lose no more tricks except to the heart A, so made his contract easily.

At the other table, East thought carefully before he played to the first trick. He decided that West had exactly four diamonds; if he held five with the A-K, he probably would have bid; if he had only three, South, with four, might have bid the suit on his second turn instead of rebidding spades. Deciding, therefore, that South had exactly three, and wishing to protect his side's secondary honors, East put his diamond 9 on the first trick and followed with his 5. The high-low caused West to lead a third round of diamonds.

Naking South had the job of breaking the black suits. Consequently he had to lose a spade trick in addition to the heart and two diamonds, so was down one.

PENALTY OF SAVAGERY

THERE were some critics, both British and American, who protested against the hanging of three German civilians for killing an American airman who parachuted from a burning bomber last August. But there are international rules of warfare governing such cases. These forbid the use of violence against prisoners; and when the rules are not obeyed it is bad in the long run for both sides.

War at best is a tough business, which must be confined as far as possible to the operations of men definitely employed for military purposes. They are expected to wear uniforms in order to prevent confusion.

Espionage is practised in all armies, and is generally considered legitimate by the practitioners. It is also deemed legitimate to shoot a proved spy when he is caught. The application of such punishment, however, by the rules of war, is reserved for military forces. If it were not so, warfare would be far worse than it is.

OH, PSHAW!

IT is interesting to find the long subdued George Bernard Shaw bobbing up again after a period of silence so long and deep that he was almost forgotten in the press of more important things. It would be more interesting, however, if the reason for his unwanted silence were explained. Presumably the British wartime censorship was responsible.

He seems to arouse neither laughs nor sneers, among Britons and Americans in general, when he proclaims that "practical British Communism" has saved Britain in the western war, while "Russian Communism" has saved Britain in the east." The most interesting and curious thing about his verbal resurrection is his jibe at the present British government, which he lambastes for its "pious protest against violence, after spending $54,000,000 a day for five years in the most frightful form of violence in the history of mankind."

Level-headed people, whether British or American, naturally wonder what would have happened to the world if the originators and promoters of the great war had not been met with superior force. Yet they are glad to hear the old "Gad-fly of Athens" take to his bitter speech again. It makes the world seem more normal. And he's been a useful debunker of many things in his day.

If all the advertisements about the effectiveness of post-war gasoline are correct, the old bus, when given a shot, will give a yip and jump over the post-office.

Things don't change very much. A few years ago people were criticising the WPA. Now it is the OPA.

Wife of Jimmie Byrnes | New Secretary of State
Is Tremendous Helper | Leans Heavily on Mate

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The wife of the new secretary of state is, so knowing politicians say, the perfect wife for the man in public life. Maud Byrnes, wife of James F., has made her husband's career her complete life work ever since she married the lively Irishman down in North Carolina. She is a pretty, gentle woman with a soft voice. She is neither argumentative nor restless. She has never dragged the poor man out to parties when he came home tired from his office. She is a charming home-maker and a wise listening post when her husband wants to explode about some of the difficulties he has had to overcome.

Whenever Byrnes ran for office, and he ran right often and right far, she drove him by day or night through his district, stopping at the right spots so that Jimmie could address an auditorium of possible constituents. Meanwhile, she was always good-tempered, encouraging and gave sound advice in the slightly baffled-by-it-all tone of voice which southern women affect so well.

"I was just thinking, Jimmie," she would say after Jimmie had been storming a bit at the opposition, "I was just thinking, that maybe you might have got the wrong impression—well, just a little—about those people really meant. It could be that you were a little tired at the time they spoke. Maybe, honey, you just didn't understand things the way they were meant."

"If ever a man was truly helped by his wife," said Speaker Sam Rayburn, "it is Jimmie Byrnes." "Why, Maud knows that fellow inside out. She has always done the thing that would be best for him. And she's done it gaily and unselfishly. I tell you, Maud's a fine girl."

Raff's laughing eyes passed Jim to rest fleetingly on Terry. They said plainly, "It's your handiwork. Are you pleased?"

Terry's happy laugh answered him.

The discussion finished, McConigle and Raff started off. But Jim and Terry insisted on going along. They took the station wagon and drove through the waving sea of pampas to the peon settlement where the first houses were going up.

Terry was amused at the assemblage of peon women and children around the houses.

"It looks like they're setting up housekeeping among the uprichts," Jim said.

Most of them had brought along food for their lunches and were spending the day watching these wondrous homes of theirs going up. They were too engrossed for more than a quick greeting to Jim and Terry. Each two by four that went into place fascinated them. And on one house where the roof was being laid several peon women were gazing with open-mouthed awe.

Children scampered about, collecting blocks and shavings, teetering precariously along horizontal planks, letting out yelps of exuberance like small balloons too full of the air of excitement.

Terry and Jim were almost as thrilled. These were their dreams come true. And Raff strutted about with McConigle like an emperor viewing his kingdom.

There were scores of details to check on. The hours flew by. Only when McConigle declared he'd have to stop for a bite of lunch did they realize it was long past noon.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a pleasant and happy year in which romance, adventure, emotional happiness as well as more spiritual and cultural values give much felicity, with probable celebrations, dramatic and satisfying. Nevertheless, in making agreements or signing documents there is need for extreme precaution, as many snares and schemes, as well as intriguing and deceitful persons and conditions menace. With sound sense, clever insight and respect for proper rules and regulations, there might be surprising and profitable openings, in business as well as professional contacts. But shun overacting, show and extravagance.

As the argument went on, Terry choked on her quiet mirth. "Hell hath no fury," she whispered.

United Brethren Class Meets With Mrs. Martin

Mrs. Russell Jones Program Chairman For 22 Attending

The July session of the Loyal Daughters Class of the United Brethren church was held at the home of Mrs. Bernard Martin, 115 Mingo street, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Russell Jones had charge of the program, which consisted of group singing, prayers by Mrs. Frank Hawkes and Mrs. Jones and a scripture lesson. "The Love Lighted Cross," a duet was offered by Mrs. Hawkes and Mrs. Charles Ater.

Readings were presented by Mrs. L. E. Pritchard, Mrs. Walter Mavis and Mrs. Charles Richardson. Prayer by the Rev. J. E. Huston closed the devotional period.

The brief business meeting was in charge of Mrs. Hawkes. It was decided to give a testament to Vernon Harrison and Max Noggle, members of the church, who will soon be inducted into the armed services. Members of the remembrance committee, hostess committee and attendance committee gave reports.

Mrs. Chester Starkey and Mrs. Jones had charge of contests, and prizes were awarded Mrs. Fred Zwicker and the Rev. Huston.

Refreshments were served to 22 members and guests by the hostess committee, which is comprised of Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. L. E. Pritchard, Mrs. Kelly Alderman and Mrs. Martin.

Miss Parks Hostess To Circle 5 Group

Miss Peggy Parks, entertained members of the Circle 5 Tuesday evening at her home on South Scioto street. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. John S. Neff Sr. Following the devotions and business meeting, a round table discussion was conducted on the topic for the evening, "American Attitude in World Peace."

Miss Parks served refreshments, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Tolbert. Plans were made for a picnic in August and the committee in charge of arrangements is Mrs. O. C. Turner, Mrs. Howard Cook and Mrs. Wilbur Funk.

Magic Sewing Club Has July Session

Mrs. Gail Wolfe was hostess to members of the Magic Sewing club, Tuesday evening at her home on Pleasant street, for the first session of the month. The evening was passed in sewing and social visiting.

Mrs. Rodger Lozier was awarded the prize for the contest conducted. For the next meeting, July 18, 8 p. m. Mrs. Walter Arledge will entertain at her home on East Ohio street.

Bridge Club Meets With Miss Weffler

Miss Mary Weffler was hostess to members of her bridge club, Tuesday evening at her home on Lancaster pike. Mrs. William Weffler and Mrs. Stanley Glick were guest players at the club.

When the scores were tallied prizes were awarded Mrs. Virgil Brown and Mrs. Frank Kline.

Miss Melvin Has Charge

Miss Ruth Melvin had charge of arrangements for a party and picnic for 25 members of the Luther League, Tuesday evening.

Swimming and skating were enjoyed by the members and supper was served to the group.

Mr. Snider Entertained

A group of friends entertained Mr. Carl Snider at a stag party, Tuesday evening at the Pickaway Country club.

Bible Class Meets

Members of the Lutheran Women's Bible class met Tuesday evening at the parish house for their regular meeting. Members worked on joining blocks for comfort tops.

Personals

Miss Helen June Foresman and Capt. Henry Foresman, Prospect Park, Penn. have been visiting with Mr. George Foresman and Mrs. David Harmon, South Court street and Miss Mary Foresman, East Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke, New York city, are visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hisey, near Williamsport.

Miss Margaret Boggs, Columbus, visited Tuesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boggs, West Union street.

Lt. and Mrs. James Wimmer and daughter, Phoenix, Arizona, were the week end guests of Lt. and Mrs. Donald W. Henry, North Courtstreet. Lt. Wimmer was in the prisoner of war camp with Lt.

A Summer Rain Coat

The fabric is black wool and cotton, processed to be water repellent, in a gabardine weave. The model has double saddle stitch trim, in white.

THE new rain coats get far away from the familiar trench coat design. Some look like coat dresses, others are more like house coats or artisan's smocks.

The model sketched here today has this new dress look about it, and is as well styled as would be one's most important sunny day coat. Note the wide sleeves... so much cooler!... the pockets cut in panel fashion, the diagonal closing with the tie sash.

The bridegroom was carried from the altar.

The bride, forgotten in the excitement, twisted the shiny, new band on her finger until the bridegroom emerged. He resumed his place, and the couple marched sedately from the chapel.

"That's all right," the Rev. Francis Shunk Downs sympathized. "I was pretty nervous too when I preached my first sermon."

Cakes baked in utility pans of porcelain enameled ware may be left in them while iced and stored to keep the cake fresh. Since the cake is not moved until served, it will keep from crumbling.

Spare The Sugar Save The Fruit

With sugar supplies tight and with many homemakers worried about home canning, the State Food Preservation Committee of the Ohio Victory Garden Council points out that fruit can be canned in water, fruit juice, or a thin syrup to strength available supplies of sugar.

Fruit can be canned without sugar and sweetened to taste when served, they suggest. Sugar helps canned fruits hold its shape, color, and flavor, but it is not necessary to keep fruit from spoiling. Unsweetened fruit should be processed the same as sweetened, except for using boiling water in place of the syrup. Cans of unsweetened fruit should be marked "no sugar."

When serving the water packed fruit, add the desired amount of sugar to the liquid and heat until the sugar dissolves. Then add the fruit and cool. This requires less sugar than if sugar is added at serving time, and the fruit is not cooked twice. The fruit canned without sugar also can be used for pies and puddings where a little extra sugar can be added.

Certain juicy fruits will retain their most natural flavor when canned in their juice, although they may not look as attractive as fruits in clear syrup. Fruits canned in fruit juice have more food value. To extract fruit juice for canning, crush and heat the soft but sound juicy fruit to boiling point, but keep the heat low enough so the fruit will not stick to the pan.

Adding a little sugar before heating helps draw out the juices and water may be added also. The juice should be strained. If thick juices are used, the processing time for canning in a hot water bath should be extended at least five minutes.

Syrup and honey may be used to replace part of the sugar in canning, according to food specialists. Corn syrup will replace as much as one-third, and honey one-half of the usual amounts of canning sugar. For a thin syrup use six cups water, two-thirds cup syrup and one and one-third cups sugar; or six cups water, one cup honey

GROOM FAINTS AFTER MUMBLING FEEBLE 'I DO'

BERKELEY, Calif., July 11—Contrary to standard wedding procedure, it was the bridegroom who mumbled his "I do"—then fainted dead away.

It all happened last night in the Chapel of the Flowers. The organist had sounded the last sweet strains of "Lohengrin." The church was hushed. The minister posed the question.

"I do," the bride answered in cool, assured tones.

"I do," the bridegroom added, after a pause.

Then, without warning, he shook his head, trembled and turned as white as the bride's veil. A dull thud echoed through the chapel.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

associates "brother." The Black men would naturally consider such friendliness a weakness. They are bitter. Unquestionably splits on legal interpretations have cut harshly into the personal lives of the justices. That bench is no place for a friendly man.

Now the Black faction has been in the majority only about half the time, mostly, I believe, in union labor cases in which they have rewritten the anti-trust law and greatly expanded the immunity of unions.

In other cases the Stone-Roberts-Frankfurter group, presenting what might be called the "legal front" of the court, frequently have been joined by Justices Reed and Jackson to make a majority of five against the Black group.

If Mr. Truman chooses as Roberts' successor anyone who will join the Black group, the court may be gone for the next 10 to 20 years.

If he appoints another Reed or Jackson, the present deplorable predicament of the highest tribunal will be still further complicated.

If he tries to get another Stone or Roberts he will, at best, be able to keep the court bewildering.

associates "brother." The Black men would naturally consider such friendliness a weakness. They are bitter. Unquestionably splits on legal interpretations have cut sharply into the personal lives of the justices. That bench is no place for a friendly man.

Now the Black faction has been in the majority only about half the time, mostly, I believe, in union labor cases in which they have rewritten the anti-trust law and greatly expanded the immunity of unions.

In other cases the Stone-Roberts-Frankfurter group, presenting what might be called the "legal front" of the court, frequently has been joined by Justices Reed and Jackson to make a majority of five against the Black group.

If Mr. Truman chooses as Roberts' successor anyone who will join the Black group, the court may be gone for the next 10 to 20 years.

If he appoints another Reed or Jackson, the present deplorable predicament of the highest tribunal will be still further complicated.

If he tries to get another Stone or Roberts he will, at best, be able to keep the court bewildering.

Seven Runs In First Inning Too Much For Coca-Cola; Kenny Homers

Scoring seven runs in the first inning Circle City coasted to an 11-2 win over Coca-Cola Tuesday night in a Night Softball league game at Ted Lewis park.

The Dairymen added two runs in the sixth and two in the seventh. The losers, who got only four hits off Elliott and Liston, did not score until the sixth when two errors and a hit let in two markers.

Circle City got eight hits, but nine walks and four errors helped the team pile up runs. Kenny hit a home run and Wellington a double for the winners.

Tonight Stansbury-Stout and Williamsport collide.

SEWELL USES NINE PITCHERS TO BEAT CARDS

NEW YORK, July 11—For whatever use posterity wants to make of it, Manager Luke Sewell of the Browns offered his "pitcher an inning" device today for winning ball games.

Sewell isn't so sure the idea would be practical in the long run and that is why he is making the broadminded offer. But it clicked perfectly last night as he sent a parade of nine different pitchers to the mound, each of whom worked an inning in a 3 to 0 war charities victory over the Cardinals. The Cards, who have been pounding national league pitchers terrifically of late, simply couldn't do a thing with the array of Brownie moundsmen, getting only two hits.

At Washington, the thrill of a lifetime came to one-legged Bert Shepard, the Army-air forces veteran, who pitched in a big league exhibition and got credit for winning it, beating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3. Sheppard, batting practice pitcher for the Senators, pitched three scoreless innings and yielded two runs in the fourth before Roger Wolff and Marino Pieretti relieved him. He gave up only five hits. Leroy Pfund, Dodger pitcher dislocated his knee.

The Red Sox topped the Braves, 8 to 1 at Boston. Dave Ferriss, rookie sensation, pitched the first three innings to become the winning pitcher. He gave up two hits and fanned two, disposing of Tommy Holmes, major league leading batter with a soft fly. However, he decided at the last minute not to go through with his stunt of pitching one inning left-handed. A crowd of 22,809 paid in $73,000 for war relief.

At Philadelphia, the Phillies counted twice in the ninth to beat the Athletics, 7 to 6. Yesterday's victories gave the American league a record of five triumphs in the seven games played.

Texas, noted for its cattle and oil, produced more than 960 million dollars worth of minerals in 1943.

SERIES HOPES STILL PREVAIL

Red Hot Races For Titles Continue Despite ODT Ban On Fall Classic

NEW YORK, July 11—Because the Office of Defense Transportation still insists there will be "no world series" unless the teams are from the same city, there was nothing at stake today in the current pennant races but glory. However, that isn't cooling them off any.

Unless baseball executives know something that hasn't been revealed to the general public, the major leagues will forget about baseball when they finish their regular seasons on Sunday, Sept. 30.

Inasmuch as the series in recent years has been a million dollar financial proposition it may take a lot of forgetting. In the 1944 series for instance, the total receipts including the rights for broadcasting were $1,066,122.00. The champion Cardinals split a winner's pot that brought each player $4,626, probably more than a number of them made in salary for the entire year. The losing Browns picked up $2,743 apiece, and the pennant winners weren't the only beneficiaries.

The second place Pirates and Tigers received about $750 per player, the third place Reds and Yankees netted about $500 each and the fourth place Cubs and Red Sox got about $250 per player.

The first division teams in each league wouldn't be the only ones to lose out if the world series were called off. Although he probably isn't worrying about it, the money to pay baseball commissioner, Sen. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler, comes from the series revenue. The war relief and service fund for war charities benefits to the extent of approximately $300,000.

The two leagues each received about $60,000 as their share of the 1944 series melon, the same amount that went to the two participating teams.

Money being what it is, it isn't likely that the pennant races would be as spirited if there were no hope whatever for the 1945 world series.

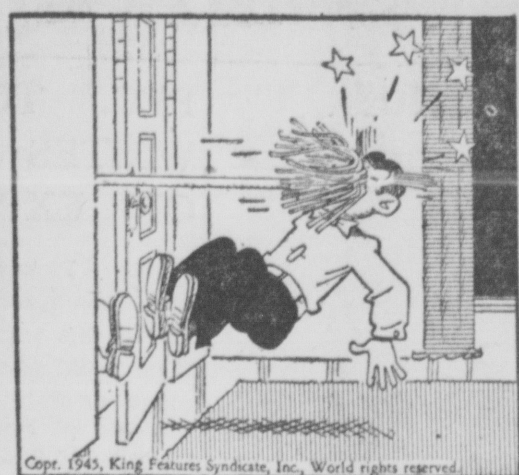

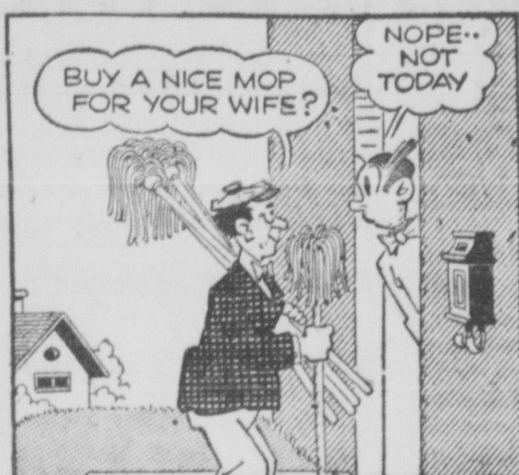

Although club officials are non-committal, there is a general air of expectancy, a hope that some plan will be worked out to salvage the classic. One club official said that if it would enable the series to be played, he would be in favor of both teams and the other persons connected with the classic using day coaches for travel.

In the past the clubs have used special cars and some years, even special trains.

Although ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson has stated that a city series would be acceptable, most men connected with the game doubt whether that would cut down travel except by the teams involved. For the fans who find it hard to resist going to a world series—war or no war—the lure of a one-town series would be greater than if they were split between two cities, because they would be able to see more games.

As for the actual travel of the teams

NEW THRILLER Aired
"The Case of the Angry Ranger," a thriller as fresh as tomorrow's headlines, finds "Stonewall" Scott, late of G-2, starting out to solve a kidnapping and winding up by corralling a black market ring on "Mystery in the Air" Thursday. It all begins when Scott's aide, Tex, his GI sergeant, disappears. Scott follows the trail and it leads to exciting adventure which an ace cast dramatizes. The lead role of Scott is played by Stephen Courtleigh, former U. S. Marine.

HOSPITAL IS WEAPON
The Army Medical Corps' hospital unit care, which provide hospital care for the wounded while they are being transported from one point to another, will be the subject of "Weapons for Victory," the Army Service Forces drama series, in its broadcast Thursday.

J. CARROLL NAISH STARS
"Footfalls," a spine-thrilling drama of a father's faith in a son suspected of murder, stars J. Carroll Naish, veteran Hollywood actor, on Thursday. One night a bank teller, who has rented a room in the home of a cobbler and his son, brings to the house a large sum in gold for safekeeping. However, a fire breaks out, destroying the home, and in the ashes a body, identified as that of the teller is discovered. The cobbler's son, who has disappeared, is blamed for the crime, and the father's unflinching nine-year search for a clue to the mystery leads the story to a surprise climax. William Spier directs the thriller series.

CONNIE BOSWELL GUEST
Edward Everett Horton's Music Hall guests for Thursday will be Connie Boswell and her new singing prodigies, the Paulette Sisters; blues singer Josh White and his five-year-old son, Josh, Jr.

RADIO NEWS NOTES
The Bob Burns airshow will return to its spot Thursday, October 4, following its usual Summer vacation. The program will be resumed with Star Bob Burns, Singer Shirley Ross and Comedian Leo Gorcey in their usual roles and a "new" character will be added—Maestro Gordon Jenkins, who conducted a traveling caravan (exhibition) of photographs prepared by parents and friends of British children evacuated to the United States depicting the everyday life of the children in America, accompanied by a lecturer, is touring England, according to the "The Doctor Fights" program.

After several years as an officer in the Army Signal Corps, Screen Star Van Heflin returns to civilian life and his acting career. His first air appearance since his honorable discharge will be on July 17 when he guest stars on the "The Doctor Fights" program.

"Cages" For Wheat

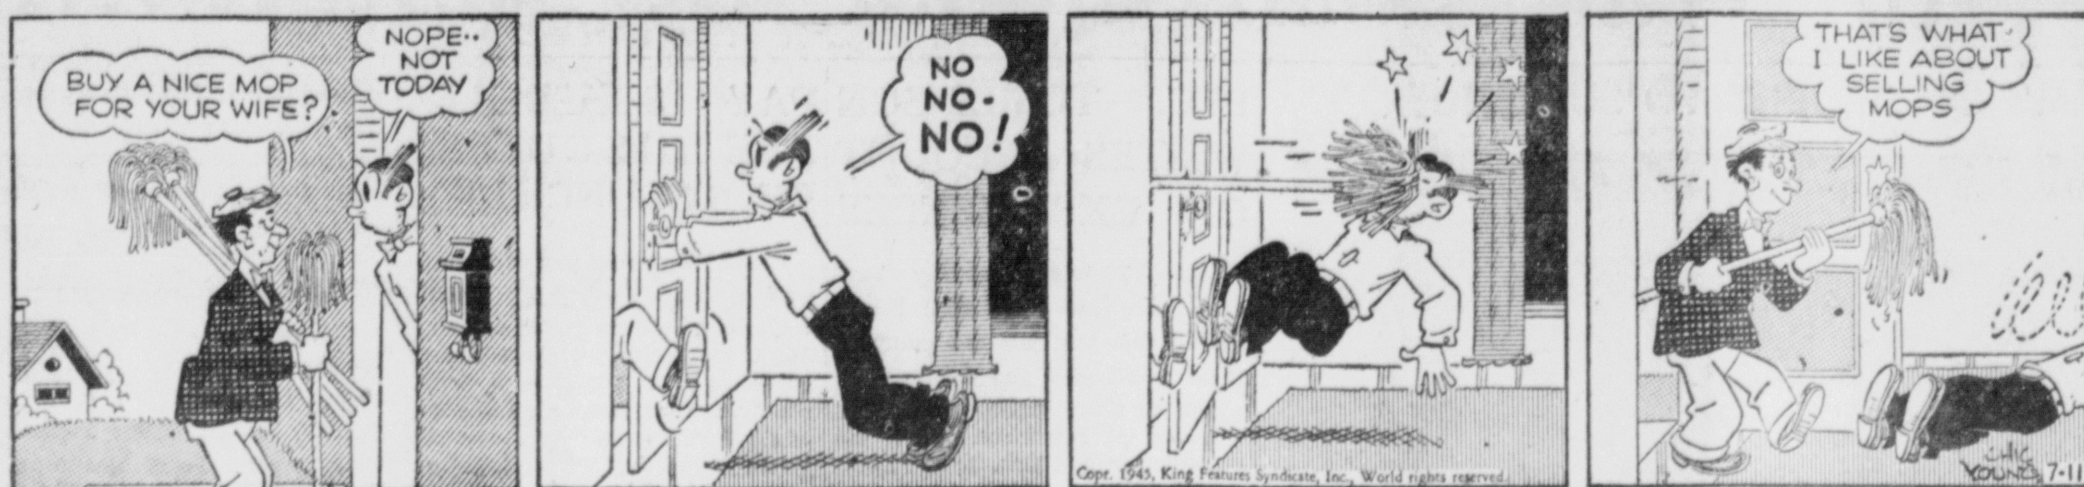

Don't blame the barnyard folk if they look wonderingly at huge "cages" being erected on farms with something that looks like chicken wire. They aren't such dumb clucks for not figuring out that the big wire bins will be lined with tarpaper and used to store wheat this year in many parts of the grain belt. Actually, the "chicken wire" is welded wire mesh made especially for the erection of grain storage bins recommended by Uncle Sam where granaries can't be built of lumber or other material. Farmers are being urged to get orders in early to dealers for the necessary wire mesh and paper, and to devise other emergency measures to store part of what looms as the nation's biggest harvest of winter wheat.

Old barns, garages, sheds, abandoned schoolhouses and theaters, and even old dwellings are being repaired and put in shape to help store the huge crop—also because the armed services need much of the available freight car and truck transportation facilities to move equipment to the Far Eastern war zone.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture warns that, although some storage terminals can handle more wheat, it is going to be so difficult to get transportation for the crop from farm to terminal that all possible effort must be expended to store the grain at home. Agricultural Adjustment Agency committees in each county are prepared to give priority assistance to farmers who can find lumber to build new granaries or repair old ones. Much of the saving of the enormous crop, however, is expected to depend upon the ingenuity of growers in utilizing available space that can be converted to storage.

"If you can't make definite arrangements to ship your wheat, get ready now for home storage," advise government officials.

The quota set for the county for these sales was $728,000.

Sales to corporations and organizations were 54 amounting to $777,568 which exceeded the quota by nearly $20,000.

Clark Will, chairman of the Pickaway county war finance committee said Wednesday that there will be some additional sales of series E bonds to be added to the total since they are counted through July 7 and these have not yet been cleared through the Federal Reserve Bank and therefore are not included in this report.

Committee members stated they were well pleased with the results of the drive especially with the sales to individuals which exceeded the quota. Even though the quota for Series E bonds was not reached the overall quota more than made up the difference.

In the 6th war loan drive Pickaway county sold $659,056.25 to 3622 individuals against a quota of $520,000. Total sales to all types of purchasers during this drive were 3709 totaling $1,370,038.25 against a quota of $1,286,000.

Relatives and friends of service men and women have again demonstrated that they are backing them and giving of their money as they are giving of their all, Mr. Will said.

The various chairmen, committee members and solicitors also may well be proud of their work and glad to know that their efforts have been crowned with success, the committee chairman added.

PFC. TOMLINSON WRITES ACCOUNT OF EXPERIENCES

Many Pickaway county boys have been places and seen things during this war but not many of them could give the detailed account of their actions that Pfc. Clarence W. Tomlinson gave to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tomlinson, York street, in a letter received by them recently.

The letter was typed single space and covered about a sheet and a half of paper 8 by 11 inches. He not only tells when and where he went and what places he visited but he gives the exact hours that he left and arrived at each place.

He started from Camp Hood, Texas and sailed on the SS Alexandria, had a smooth voyage with no enemy action, arrived in Liverpool, from there to Ross on Wye after which he spent some time in other English camps before arriving at Landeau, France. His letter tells of various French camps in which he was stationed before going to Belgium where he participated in numerous major battles. He told of many Belgium towns thru which he passed and of the companies and divisions with which he fought and says that when word of the ending of the war was received his company was in position near the town of Volign, Czechoslovakia ready to fire in support of the 4th armored division on the drive to capture the city of Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia. They were not surprised much he says as they had been expecting the end for some time, but they were all very happy when it finally did come.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

A divorce suit was filed in common pleas court Monday by Mavis Ison, against Bert D. Ison charging gross neglect of duty. The couple, who have been residing in Commercial Point, were married August 5, 1938 in Sandy Hook, Ky., and have 3 children. The plaintiff asks alimony, custody of the children, Donald 6, Dorothy, 3 and David, one year old. She also asks for alimony and sustenance of children and funds for the divorce action.

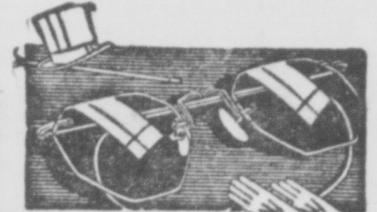

Because of a fashion craze in France for beaver hats, Detroit was founded by the French explorer Cadillac who was scouring the New World for "beaver gold mines."
